STRATEGIC GOALS

Strategic goals for Sandalwood Symphony by JAM Perfumes are essential for guiding the company's growth and success in the luxury perfume market. These objectives encompass various aspects of the business, including product development, branding, market expansion, and customer satisfaction.

1. Become a leader in the luxury perfume market.
2. Increase brand awareness and recognition.
3. Expand into new markets.

4. Increase customer loyalty and satisfaction.

Above all, Sandalwood Symphony has set a lofty objective for itself: to become a market leader in luxury perfumes. This may be accomplished by continuously creating inventive, high-quality scents that appeal to a discriminating customer base. By emphasizing product quality, the business may draw in and keep clients who are looking for exceptional and distinctive smells. Developing a solid reputation for your brand is also essential. In the luxury market, trust and reputation are earned gradually. Careful attention to detail in the product and brand image may help accomplish this. It's also crucial to grow the distribution network to reach more clients. Expanding its reach allows Sandalwood Symphony to expand into new areas and broaden its clientele.

The enhancement of brand recognition and awareness is the focus of the second strategic aim. Sandalwood Symphony is a relatively new business, thus, to reach prospective consumers, it needs to spend money on marketing and advertising initiatives. Moreover, PR campaigns may aid in building discussion about the company. Partnerships with other premium companies may also be advantageous to both parties. Through cross-promotion, Sandalwood Symphony may increase its exposure and reputation in the market by making use of the clientele of well-known luxury brands.

Expanding the market is the third strategic objective. Even though it only serves a small number of markets now, the business may expand by going after new markets in other nations. This global diversity may lower risk and provide possibilities in regions where there is a market for high-end fragrances. By satisfying consumers' need for a more thorough grooming experience, extending the product line to include additional goods like body lotions and shower gels may aid in gaining market share in the personal care sector.

The last strategic objective is to increase customer happiness and loyalty, which is essential to retaining and expanding a clientele. Strong connections with consumers may be fostered by providing excellent customer service, which includes individualized shopping experiences and reward programs. To make sure the business meets the demands and expectations of its customers, listening to their input is just as crucial. By attending to these requirements and consistently enhancing its services, Sandalwood Symphony may build a devoted and contented clientele that will foster the expansion of the company.

HR STRATEGY:

Human resource strategy means how to invest money in the proper way to become useful in its business activities. HR is a special department in every job sector; its duty is to hire individuals for jobs in the company, appreciate the best job holders, and encourage employees to work for the company's better position by giving compensation for their work.

HR strategy has some rules, which are as follows

This HR needs data on the company the work atmosphere and how employees are working. HR needs some time to come into existence in the company. This will design the nature and way of human resources. This will help properly spread the company's resources. Annually, changes will be made to it. It will act according to the expert's review. Finally, it had some special qualities. HRM is the method that is helpful for HR strategy. In this, we can study where HR originated and how it came into existence in business strategies. The HR model creates business strategy in a deployment way, and it will try to arrange all the company's strategies in a certain way so the company can easily understand what it should achieve. Because of all the company's activities, HR has a great role in the company's growth. Sandal Wood Symphony's business strategy depends on the past and current situation. This company can understand what it has done in the past and what it should do in the present by rectifying past mistakes. SWOT analysis is the best method to achieve this strategy (Vlahos, 2007).

SWOT ANALYSIS

SWOT analysis shows the company's capacity and how it can perfume. The positives, negatives, and threats from outside are aligned properly to know everything. What do the positives of a company mean about the company's brand in the market and how it is performing in the market? By using the above diagram, the company can also identify its weaknesses and rectify them in the future. Its current strengths should be maintained in the future as well.

MARKETING STRATEGY

The marketing strategy of a company means attracting normal people and making them their permanent customers by valuing them and giving them the product, they expect from the company. The marketing strategy mainly includes the position of the company in the market and information about its target customers. The marketing strategy includes four main points: price, place, and promotion (Galbreath & Benjamin, 2010). The marketing strategy includes some key factors, including:

Business definition: noticing the goals of a company, which are small and large, and achieving them properly by following this strategy. Performing the research: by performing research in the market, the company can find its target people, know their desires about the product, and give them their preferred product. Creating customer groups: by creating groups of customers, they can easily find target customers and attract them by giving them their preferred product. Identifying competitors: knowing the competitors in the market and finding their business strategies So, by doing so, we can easily monitor our product launches through their movement in the market. Creating uniqueness in the market: by having unique value in the market apart from our competitors, our target audience will reach us for our product because the value given by us to our customers will bring them to us. By achieving the above steps, the company can launch many initiatives in the market successfully.

MOTIVATION STRATEGY

A motivational strategy is the best way to increase the production of goods. Not only the production performance of workers and compensating them for their work; moral values in the workplace; giving more jobs; respecting the people; a flexible work environment; and creating faith among them. Motivational strategies will change according to the needs of workers.

The important steps for motivational strategy are as follows:

Designing the achievable goals: having a strong emotional feeling about the goal is a common factor, but if the project is large, you should break it into smaller ones, and then the work will be easier without any low feelings.

Compensating yourself: By compensating yourself, a person feels motivated, whether the reward is big or small, to achieve more. Watching success: by seeing success, a person feels motivated to keep himself in a better position and tries to work hard to withstand that place.

Keeping targets: by keeping target dates, a person feels motivated to achieve his goal within the schedule, and he will work to achieve progress toward his goal. Find inspiration: this is the best step to keep ourselves motivated because a person can be motivated by anything, for example, quotes or books, whatever it is. By keeping ourselves motivated, we keep ourselves near our targets.
